

Signs of Safety Study

Please click here to view this message in ASL.

Now through 2028, the DeafYES team at UMass Chan Medical School is recruiting Deaf, DeafBlind, DeafDisabled, and Hard of Hearing individuals across the U.S. for a research study on trauma and addiction!

DeafYES is seeking people who have used alcohol and experienced trauma-related stress in the past month. Participants may receive 12 virtual counseling sessions at no cost, learn skills to manage trauma and addiction, and earn up to $500 for completing five online surveys.

Below, DeafYES has included the links to their recruitment vlog and their pre-screening survey.

DeafBlind-accessible recruitment video: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/LEN3F6_O-QM

Pre-screening survey: <https://bit.ly/SignsOfSafety>

If you have any questions about the Signs of Safety study, please contact the study team at signsofsafety@umassmed.edu. If interested, their team can share additional details about the study, either through a 1:1 videochat or a presentation to your organization.